

SCONE HORSE TRIALS CANCELLED

Due to a tragic accident today, the Scone Horse Trials have been cancelled.

It is with the deepest regret we announce that Olivia Inglis suffered a tragic accident whilst competing in the cross country phase at the Scone Horse Trials, today Sunday 6th March.

Olivia was riding the family's Coriolanus in the two star competition, this morning when the accident occurred. Olivia was given urgent medical attention, attended by the on-course paramedic, the on-course doctor and the Westpac rescue helicopter service but unfortunately was unable to be revived.

The family horse Coriolanus is in a stable condition and remains under Veterinary observation.

The Scone Horse Trials committee and Equestrian Australia offer their heartfelt condolences to Charlotte and Arthur Inglis and their family for their tragic loss and request their privacy be respected at this time.

Counselling services have been arranged with Davidson Trahaire to support anyone who was at the Event and would like to access this service. Please call 1300 360 364 and mention Equestrian Australia and you will be directed to a counsellor.
